

We can never stand still

The money we raise makes a difference for babies and their families — but we still have work to do. Stacey and John Jamerson know this all too well.

Colby in the NICU

In 2009, their twin boys, Connor and Colby, arrived 13 weeks early and weighed just over 2 lbs. Connor lost his fight as his brother clung to life. They faced the NICU challenge two more times when their twin girls, Sydney and Zoe, were born 6 weeks early, and their newest addition, Hunter, was born just one month ago at 35 weeks. They now have four healthy children at home. Without the work of the March of Dimes, they might not be able to say that. They are passionate about March for Babies, and their family team has helped raise more than $26,000 in 3 years. In honor of their five little heroes, they're ready to walk again — and envision a day when no parents have to watch their premature baby struggle ... and every baby gets to come home.

- for the prevention of premature birth and birth defects
- for the little ones fighting to survive
- for all the children that bless our lives

As long as there are babies, we have to walk.
